CONTENTS

Acknowledgments ix
Introduction: Working Women in(to) Rhetorical History 3

JESSICA ENOCH AND DAVID GOLD

1. Republicanism, Religiosity, and the Rhetoric of Women’s Labor
   Reform in Lowell, Massachusetts, 1830–1850 17

AMY J. WAN

2. From Slave to Seamstress: Elizabeth Keckley’s Rhetoric of Emotional Labor 31

PATTY WILDE

3. Louisa May Alcott’s Work: A New True Working Woman 42

NANCY MYERS

4. “Opulent Friendships,” Rhetorical Emulation, and Belletristic
   Instruction at Leache-Wood Seminary 56

PAMELA VANHAITSMA

5. Resituating Rhetorical Failure: The Case of Nineteenth-Century
   Metallurgist Carrie Everson 69

SARAH HALLENBECK
6. Professional Proof: Arguing for Women Photographers at the Fin de Siècle
   KRISTIE S. FLECKENSTEIN
   84

7. Making Use of the Mundane: The Women’s Trade Union League’s Fight to Give Working Women a Voice
   MARYBETH PODER
   102

8. Figuring Vice: Sex, Women, and Work in Kate Waller Barrett’s Exhibitionist Rhetoric
   HEATHER BROOK ADAMS AND JASON BARRETT-FOX
   116

   RISA APPLEGARTH
   130

10. To Labor with Dignity: Alberta Hunter’s Respectability and Resistance Rhetoric
    CORETTA M. PITTMAN
    144

    JANE GREER
    158
12. Babe Didrikson Zaharias’s Rhetorical Branding: When It’s Not Enough to Be the World’s Greatest Woman Athlete
Lisa J. Shaver

13. In Rosie’s Shadow: World War II Recruitment Rhetoric and Women’s Work in Public Memory
Michelle Smith

14. “Other Peoples’ Kitchens”: Invisible Labor and Militant Voice during the Early Cold War
Jennifer Keohane

15. Gossard Girls Are Good Girls: Labor Activism at a 1949 Garment Factory Strike
Carly S. Woods and Kristen Lucas

Notes

Works Cited

Contributors

Index