

Contents

Foreword by Robert M. Entman vii

Preface xi

Introduction: Framing Political Issues in American Politics 1
Karen Callaghan and Frauke Schnell

Part I. The Origins and Development of Frames

1. News from Somewhere: Journalistic Frames and the Debate over “Public Journalism” 21
Michael X. Delli Carpini

2. Campaign Frames: Can Candidates
Influence Media Coverage? 54
Kim L. Fridkin and Patrick J. Kenney

3. Obstacles and Opportunities: Factors That Constrain
Elected Officials’ Ability to Frame Political Issues 76
Teena Gabrielson

Part II. The Impact of Elite Discourse on Citizens

4. Democratic Debate and Real Opinions 103
Donald R. Kinder and Thomas E. Nelson

5. Terrorism, Media Frames, and Framing Effects:
A Macro- and Microlevel Analysis 123
Frauke Schnell and Karen Callaghan

6. Super-Predators or Victims of Societal Neglect?
Framing Effects in Juvenile Crime Coverage 148
Franklin D. Gilliam Jr. and Shanto Iyengar

7. Media Frames, Core Values, and the Dynamics of Racial Policy Preferences 167
Paul M. Kellstedt

Conclusion: Controversies and New Directions
in Framing Research 179
Karen Callaghan

Notes 191

References 215

List of Contributors 239

Index 243