Suzanne Martinson dedicates this book to:

My mother, Ann Garner, an avid newspaper reader who read everything I ever wrote and only let slip one time that she thought something I wrote was “boring.”

My late farmer father, Waldo M. Garner, a storyteller par excellence who never met an ice cream parlor he didn't like.

My husband, Bob “Ace” Martinson, who improves everything I write and makes me feel good about my work and myself, though there are foods he just won't eat.

Our daughter, Jessica, who from the first time she pulled up a wooden chair to help me make chocolate mousse, has been willing to taste any food.

Chef Robert Sendall dedicates this book to:

My mentor in the kitchen, my grandmother, Louise Weber, and my dear friend and collaborator, Jane Citron.
