

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	i
 PART ONE: Imagining the Work of Composition
Prologue: Toward an Interpretive Pedagogy	13
1. Learning the Work of Composition	18
2. Inventing and Reinventing the Discipline of Composition	37
 PART TWO: Introducing English in America: Education as Conversion and Conservation in Colonial Settings
Prologue	59
3. Figuring Pocahontas	66
4. Composing the Other: Underwriting Colonial Education	82
5. Educating the Other	100
Epilogue to Part Two	118
 PART THREE: The Contexts and Genres of the Intellectual Work of Composition
6. Reading/Writing in the Classroom and the Profession	123
7. Genre as a Social Institution	142
8. Academic and Student Genres: Toward a Poetics of Composition	160
 PART FOUR: Composition's Work with the Disciplines
9. Genre Theory, Academic Discourse, and Writing within Disciplines	183
10. Working with Faculty: Disciplinary Writing Seminars as Interdisciplinary Work	196
11. Engaging Intellectual Work: The Role of Faculty in Writing Program Teaching and Assessment	211

PART FIVE. Correspondences

12. The Impolitics of Letters: Undoing Critical Faculties	233
13. A Letter to Maggie	246
Afterword	253
Notes	267
References	273
Index	281