

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	IX
Introduction	XI

PART I. Blessed by Fossil Fuels?

Pittsburgh, Houston, Louisiana, and Los Angeles

Chapter 1. Pittsburgh as an Energy Capital: Perspectives on Coal and Natural Gas Transitions and the Environment	5
Joel A. Tarr and Karen Clay
Chapter 2: The Energy Capital of the World? Oil-Led Development in Twentieth-Century Houston	30
Martin V. Melosi and Joseph A. Pratt
Chapter 3. Making a Lemon Out of Lemonade: Louisiana's Petrochemical Corridor	58
Craig E. Colten
Chapter 4. Los Angeles, the Energy Capital of Southern California	77
Sarah S. Elkind

PART II. Distant yet Central? Perth, Calgary, and Stavanger

Chapter 5. Scoping Perth as an Energy Capital	95
Jenny Gregory
Chapter 6. At Arm's Length: Energy and the Construction of a Peripheral Prairie Petrometropolis	111
Matthew N. Eisler
Chapter 7. Oil Shocks in an Oil City: The View from Stavanger, Norway, 1973-2008	127
Gunnar Nerheim

PART III. Cursed by Oil? Tampico and Port-Gentil

Chapter 8. Tampico, Mexico: The Rise and Decline of an Energy Metropolis 147

Myrna Santiago

Chapter 9. Port-Gentil: From Forestry Capital to Energy Capital 159

Douglas A. Yates

Conclusion. Comparative Perspectives on Energy Capitals 181

Notes 197

Contributors 251

Index 255