

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments vii

INTRODUCTION

Chicana/o Narratives, Then and Now

1

William Orchard and Yolanda Padilla

CHAPTER 1

The Diachronics of Difference:

Chicano Narrative Then, Now, and before Chicanidad

25

Jesse Alemán

CHAPTER 2

The Transnational Imaginaries of Chicano/a Studies and Hemispheric Studies:

Polycentric and Centrifugal Methodologies

40

David Luis-Brown

CHAPTER 3

The “Other” Novel of the Mexican Revolution

63

Yolanda Padilla

CHAPTER 4

Desiring History in Sabina Berman’s and Sandra Cisneros’s

Narratives of the Mexican Revolution

80

Belinda Linn Rincón

CHAPTER 5

Finding Mexican Chicago on Mango Street:

A Transnational Production of Space and Place in Sandra Cisneros’s

The House on Mango Street and Caramelo

103

Olga L. Herrera

CHAPTER 6

Resisting the Interpretive Schema of the Novel Form:
Rereading Sandra Cisneros's The House on Mango Street

121

*Paula M. L. MoyaCHAPTER 7

Chicano Narrative's Hidden Print Cultures and the Chicano/a Literary Counterpublic

139

*John Alba CutlerCHAPTER 8

I Digress:
Reading Chicano Narrative and Manuel Muñoz's "Monkey, Sí"

159

*Ralph E. RodriguezCHAPTER 9

Chicano Narrative Now:
Literary Discourses in an Age of Transnationalism

171

*Ramón SaldívarCHAPTER 10

"You Choose Your Space and You Fight There"
An Interview with Ramón Saldívar

177

Notes 201

Works Cited 213

Contributors 229

Index 233