CONTENTS

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction: New Perspectives on Darwinian Commemoration 3

Joel Barnes and Ian Hesketh

SECTION I: DEATH AND REBIRTH

Chapter 1. Commemorating Darwin's Death in Britain: Revolution, Reception, and Reconciliation 27

Ian Hesketh

Chapter 2. Argentina's Darwinians Coping with Darwin's Life and Death: The 1882 Commemoration Speeches 43

Adriana Novoa

Chapter 3. Appraisals of a Paper Monument: Religious Responses to The Life and Letters of Charles Darwin (1887) 64

Diarmid A. Finnegan

SECTION II: THE CENTENNIAL OF THE ORIGIN OF SPECIES

Chapter 4. Commemorating Darwin's Origin of Species in Cold War America 87

Emily M. Kern

Chapter 5. Caught Between (Scientific) Empires: The 1959 Darwin Centennial in Canadian Academic and Popular Culture 104

Alexander Hall

Chapter 6. The Darwin Centenary Celebrations in Australia, 1959 124

Joel Barnes

Chapter 7. "Uncritical Enthusiasm for Evolutionary Theory": John Mulvaney, Edmund D. Gill, and the Centennial Construction of Australia's Human History 146

Amy Way

SECTION III: COMPARING COMMEMORATIONS

Chapter 8. Toward Darwin's Ecuadorian Galápagos: Celebrating Sovereignty and Cosmopolitanism, 1909–1959 163

Elisa Sevilla and Ana Sevilla

Chapter 9. Memorializing the Unmemorable: Charting Evolutionary Dialogues in 1920s China 185

Xiaoxing Jin

Chapter 10. Celebrating Darwin in Japan: The "Success" and "Failure" of the Reception of Evolutionary Theory 210

Akihisa Setoguchi

Chapter 11. Darwin Under Siege: The Politics of Remembering and Forgetting 226

Henry-James Meiring

Afterword: Commemorating Darwin Redux? 252

Vassiliki Betty Smocovitis

Notes 269

Selected Bibliography 339

Contributors 349

Index 353